Girl Scout Troops Support

#GIVINGTUESDAY™

November 27, 2018

Yes She Can is a Westchester-based nonprofit organization that helps young women with autism develop job skills so that they can become employed and fulfill their potential. It was founded by Marjorie Madfis in 2013.

We teach job skills at Girl AGain, a resale boutique for refurbished American Girl dolls and all their accessories and books. The store is located at 4 Martine Avenue in White Plains, NY.

Many girls love American Girl because the stories of the characters are about strong, smart, creative, resourceful, and kind girls. These are qualities that the Girl Scouts help to instill. Girl Scout troops have visited Girl AGain to learn about autism and to create a doll t-shirt.

Girl Scout troops are invited to fundraise for Yes She Can during Giving Tuesday, a worldwide movement celebrated on Tuesday after Thanksgiving, following Black Friday and Cyber Monday. It's a day to give your time and money to help organizations that do good.

Yes She Can needs funds to operate our job skills program which includes clinical professionals to coach our trainees. Only 60 percent of our funding comes from store sales. The rest is from donations and grants.

Here are ways Girl Scout troops can help on November 27th

- Set up a collection table and raffle at your local supermarket or mall entrance after school
- Or host a bake sale
  - Yes She Can provides an AG item to raffle, raffle coupons, cash donation receipts, a table sign, Yes She Can info cards, and Girl AGain post cards
- Make flyers for school back packs and posters telling students about Girl AGain and request a donation to Yes She Can. Distribute on 11/27. Yes She Can will help with designs
